

Moon Shining

© 2004 John J. Freeman (BMI)

All that I am I left in Alabama, with the moon shining down on your love
My peace I will make when my one big mistake
Takes the smiles that she fakes and those hearts that she breaks
And goes back to the place she came from

All that I am I left in Alabama, with the moon shining down on your love
My peace I will make when my one big mistake
Takes the smiles that she fakes and those hearts that she breaks
And goes back to the place she came from

I see my reflection move in the direction
Of a boy who once felt so alive
But the more that I see, the more I want to leave
And the more that I breath is the more that I bleed
And the more that I hold deep inside

All that I am I left in Alabama, with the moon shining down on your love
My peace I will make when my one big mistake
Takes the smiles that she fakes and those hearts that she breaks
And goes back to the place she came from

All that I am I left in Alabama, with the moon shining down on your love
My peace I will make when my one big mistake
Takes the smiles that she fakes and those hearts that she breaks
And goes back to the place she came from

When my heart was torn, I came to California
Where the girls all kept walking away
Put a guitar in my hand, then I felt like a man
I thought of a plan, and I got in a band
Then they started walking my way

All that I am I left in Alabama, with the moon shining down on your love
My peace I will make when my one big mistake
Takes the smiles that she fakes and those hearts that she breaks
And goes back to the place she came from